MEDIAPOST USES IMEET CENTRAL TO POWER ANNUAL AWARD PROGRAMS

NEED FOR A COLLABORATION SOLUTION

MediaPost keeps a finger on the pulse of all things media and marketing. The organization produces popular publications, hosts conferences featuring luminaries like Martha Stewart and Mark Cuban and offers a series of award programs to shine spotlights on the best work happening in advertising and marketing today.

The Creative Media Awards, true to the name, honor all the creative components behind the vision and execution of the best campaigns. The OMMA Awards are like the Oscars for marketers, with categories like Best Home Page Takeover and Best SEM Campaign.

Persia Tatar oversees all of the marketing throughout MediaPost’s award cycles: the submission process, the judge recruitment, the ticket sales and the management of the events themselves.

Originally, Tatar’s MediaPost colleagues developed an in-house solution that allowed for the juggling of all the different categories and judges involved with each new award season; this solution worked as a stopgap, but wasn’t viable for the long-term. Judges weren’t able to work with each other, and they had to download each nominated video or creative asset individually – a considerable speed bump for judges donating their time and expertise.

Rather than devoting internal programming resources to a more complex solution, MediaPost turned to iMeet Central. “We had many, many
